A book celebrating the most important or interesting treasures of the Ironmongers' Company was the late Leslie Weller's brainchild. He wanted it to be his 2001 mastership gift with an aim of widening the knowledge of Company members and others interested in its treasured objects. This vision has now been realised in a superb new publication now available to members.

Items in the collection at the Hall today have, in the main, been gathered since the fifteenth century and range in date from the thirteenth to the twenty-first century. This book's selection of one hundred of these Company treasures has been divided into sections covering Furniture, Silver, Sculptures, Paintings, Miscellaneous Items and Archives & Books.
